

Adorisio O, Elia A, Pinzauti E, Pancani S, Mirabile L, Lenares E, Danti DA.

SourceDepartment of Pediatric Surgery, Pediatric Urology Unit, Anna Meyer Children's Hospital, Florence, Italy. o.adorisio@meyer.it

We present a case of a 2-year-old girl who had a lawn mower accident with subtotal gut evisceration, multiple ischemic intestinal lesions, hepatic and gastric wounds, amputation of the left forearm, and hypovolemic shock.

Prompt and adequate management was carried out in tertiary level institution, based upon quick evaluation of the lesions, fluid resuscitation, surgical repair, and postoperative admission to the pediatric intensive care unit.

<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/>

PMID:18212607[PubMed - indexed for MEDLINE]